See the end of the document for explanations of the special features of some of the models: Tips (HP, Frag, LDC, Cavity) | Bases (Hollow, Pellet, Cup, Dish, BoatT) | Diameters (head sizes).

Stats (.22cal)

- 12 manufacturers shipping to the US, of which 7 are selling/shipping worldwide
- 368 variations (weight, diameter, shape) available to US customers, 51 of these worldwide
- Prices as low as 5 or 6 cents by NSA (with 21 variations), or 7-8c (H&N: 10; JSB: 3).
- Diameters: usually only .217 and .218, however NSA will offer 5 different diameters by September, so shooters can fit the slug to their barrels
- Extreme hollow points offered by Talon (frags!) and LFS
- Weights from as low as 15gr (Griffin) and as high as 55gr

Tips

Cavity = Griffin 2-Stroke Cavity Point: not just a HP but a large hollow cavity in the nose of the slug that allows a full size slug (better form factor) without the full weight (better velocity) (similar to Hybrid); price higher due to two dies and double the work

Domed = rounded head, no hollow point

Frag = Talon Fragmenting Slugs: a hollow point with predetermined areas of fragmentation, making it unlikely that the slug passes through the quarry, instead expending its energy in the quarry; price higher due to two-step process; developed by swish (aka Chad) and The_Long_Shot (aka Tom)

HP = hollow point

Hybrid = FX Hybrid Slug: not just a HP but a large hollow cavity (HP) in the nose of the slug that allows a full size slug (better form factor) without the full weight (better velocity) (similar to Cavity Point); developed by RatSniperSlugs

LDC = Griffin 2-Stroke Low Density Core: a hollow point slug with a poly ball inside that allows a full size slug (better form factor) without the full weight (better velocity); poly ball helps expansion; price higher due to two dies and double the work

Spitzer = long and sharply pointed head (not short and blunt like many “pointed” pellet)

Bases (from deepest to shallowest)

HollowB = hollow base (=very deep or extremely deep cavity)

PelletB = classic pellet base (=medium deep cavity)

CupB = cup base (=shallow cavity with ridge)

DishB = dish base (=shallowest cavity)

FlatB = flat base (=no cavity)

BoatTB = rebated boat tail

Diameter (Head Size)

For slugs, the mfrs often state the diameter in imperial units (inches) – even though for pellets the diameter or head size is often stated in metric units (mm) (cf. JSB, H&N, RWS).

Abbreviations for the Head Size and Abbreviations-Table Below:

cvt mm = converted inches into mm

cvt in = converted mm into inches

abbr = suggested abbreviation, based on the metric size; H = head size

alt abbr = alternative abbreviation, based on the metric size

imp abbr = imperial abbreviation
